

Abstract of the Invention

Factors that are critical to the preparation of wood products and useful 5 for flavoring aqueous food products are disclosed. As a result of identifying these critical factors, the herein described process produces a wood product that transfers the desired flavor profile to the aqueous food product efficiently and economically. The resultant wood squares produce excellent flavor in ten percent, or less, of the time it takes for traditional aging.

10